

Keeping the flow of information is a very important issue in today's world. Especially the opportunity for multiple sources of that information. When you limit the source of information to one source such as the radio waves am/fm and do not allow the newer medium of satellite radio to provide that information it is a direct violation of freedom of speech. Sadly that has been overused recently, but it is true.

If only have one source of information, first of all we have to ask how valid it is, and second, what if that information is being filtered or censored, and third what if the source decides to withhold it.

Satellite radio is a new technology that will in the long term help provide useful information to more people enabling them to be more informed. And the opportunity for selection of information sources is imperative for people to make decisions.
